

CLOUD KITCHEN ENTREPRENEUR CHALLENGE

THE CHALLENGE

California Burrito wants to launch a new cloud kitchen-first Indian food brand.

The brand must have a completely new Indian identity, colour palette, menu, packaging style, and brand personality - but it must still stay true to California Burrito's core product strength; fast, fresh, customisable meals built around burrito-style wraps and rice bowls.

Your challenge is to create an India-first food brand that does not feel like a Mexican brand with Indian flavours added on top.

It should feel like a new Indian food brand built for modern delivery behaviour; quick lunches, comfort dinners, college cravings, office meals, solo orders, group orders, and repeat ordering.

Your goal is simple: Build a cloud kitchen brand that makes burritos and rice bowls feel deeply Indian, highly craveable, delivery-friendly, and commercially scalable.

You will build:

1. A clear target audience and customer insight
2. A new brand name and brand positioning
3. A visual identity direction including colours, fonts, moodboard, and packaging style
4. A menu concept built around Indian burritos, wraps, rice bowls, sides, sauces, and beverages
5. 6 to 10 hero menu items with names, descriptions, and pricing
6. A cloud kitchen operating logic explaining how the menu can be prepared efficiently
7. A basic unit economics view for 2 to 3 hero products
8. A launch campaign idea for the first 30 days
9. A deck explaining your complete brand, menu, and business strategy

For additional brownie points, you may also create:

1. Packaging mockups
2. AI-generated food visuals
3. A sample Swiggy/Zomato menu page
4. A 30-second launch reel concept
5. A cloud kitchen layout or prep flow

6. A sample customer journey from discovery to repeat order

BRAND ELIGIBILITY

To be eligible for submission, your cloud kitchen concept must meet the following conditions:

1. It must be designed for California Burrito as the case brand.
2. It must create a new Indian identity, not simply redesign California Burrito's existing brand.
3. It must stay true to the burrito, wrap, and rice bowl format.
4. It must have a strong Indian food identity without becoming stereotypical or gimmicky.
5. It must include a clear target audience and eating occasion.
6. It must include a practical delivery-first menu.
7. The menu must be operationally realistic for a cloud kitchen.
8. It must include pricing for the hero products.
9. It must include basic unit economics for at least 2 hero products.
10. It must include packaging and listing ideas that would stand out on Swiggy/Zomato.
11. The concept must be scalable across multiple cloud kitchen locations.

The Question You Are Trying to Answer

Can I take California Burrito's strength in fast, fresh, customizable burritos and rice bowls and turn it into a new Indian cloud kitchen brand that people would crave, order, remember, and reorder?

FINAL SUBMISSION

Submit the following:

1. Presentation/deck explaining your brand strategy, menu concept, target audience, pricing, unit economics, packaging, and launch plan
 - a. New brand identity direction including name, positioning, colour palette, moodboard, and packaging style
 - b. Menu strategy with 6 to 10 hero products, descriptions, and pricing
 - c. Basic unit economics for at least 2 hero products
 - d. Swiggy/Zomato listing strategy with product naming, descriptions, combos, and launch offers
2. Bonus: Packaging mockups, AI-generated food visuals, sample menu page, launch reel, or cloud kitchen prep flow
3. Date of Submission: 23rd June 2026